TECHNICAL OVERVIEW DELIVERABLES

Deliverables are those files, documents, products, or other items that are delivered to the customer, either before, during, or at the completion of an activity by PEI. These deliverables typically trigger a project to move to the next stage or signify the completion of a particular phase of a project.

PEI supplies a variety of deliverables to its customers, with some being supplied as a mandatory step in our design process while others are supplied upon request or when the situation requires it. Below is a list of the most commonly supplied or requested deliverables. Please note that we will always try to accommodate requests for deliverables not listed here provided such a request does not involve proprietary or confidential information. Also, depending on the work involved with supplying the non-standard deliverable, there may be an added charge associated with complying with the request.

If a deliverable that you wish to receive from us is not listed here, please contact Customer Service to inquire about our policy or ability to supply the item. Chances are that if you normally receive such an item from other enclosure suppliers, then we have probably supplied such an item to our customers, even if it is not normally supplied.
